|---|---|
| Name | ETH Bioenergia |
| Holding | 16.49% |
| Website | www.eth.com |
| Sector | Energy - Alternate Sources |
| Business Description & Rationale | ETH Bioenergia, formerly Brenco - Companhia Brasileira de Energia Renovável, is a fully integrated, renewable fuels company which has initiated construction of one of Brazil's largest ethanol production platforms involving the planning, development and harvesting of sugarcane and the large scale industrial production and distribution of ethanol fuel. The investment rationale is the favourable ethanol production environment in Brazil, with an experienced labour force, a large amount of inexpensive, fertile and arable land, an ideal climate and proven technology. ETHB's competitive advantage is based on its cost-advantaged raw material supply, integrated production and strong execution. The Company is one of the few global-scale, technologically advanced producers with significant ethanol and cogeneration capacity and a strong balance sheet. |
| Recent Events | ETHB began operations at its last two remaining greenfield plants on time as the 2011/12 harvest season headed toward its close in March 2012. All 9 plants are expected to be in operation for their first full harvest season in 2012/13. Weather-related, industry-wide production shortages have impacted the Company's production volumes but have also fuelled the recent surge in ethanol prices. The net result on ETHB's outlook is that the volume ramp up to full capacity production is now expected in the 2014/15 harvest season (from 2013/14 originally planned) due to the agricultural impact resulting in a lower production of sugar cane. Near-term profitability and leverage is expected to be negatively impacted, but the medium and longer term profitability outlook appears increasingly robust. |

Market Review

February showed another continuation of the risk rally. Global markets were supported by news that EU member parliaments agreed a second €130bn bailout package for Greece. The package came with many caveats including fiscal and structural reform as well as a debt-exchange proposal. Other central banks contributed to fuelling the market rally: the Bank of England and the Bank of Japan increased their asset purchase programmes by £50bn and JPY10tn, respectively, the People's Bank of China decreased the banks' reserve ratio requirements, and the US Fed left the door open for further quantitative easing. Economic data was generally supportive. Despite weak employment and PMI data in Europe, risks of severe economic accident have diminished. In the US, the economy is showing tangible signs of life: the US payroll and ISM non-manufacturing data surprised on the upside, credit growth has revived and regional surveys have been firm. The recent rise in oil prices, spurred by heightened tension with Iran, presents some upside risk to inflation and some downside risk to growth, but this is not the market's central case. Global equity and credit markets closed the month on a strong note.

Emerging economies have continued to perform well: the main positive stories have been the benign economic data out of China, which belies fears of hard landing, and the better chance of a regime change in Venezuela following the deterioration of Chavez's health. The less positive stories have been the increase in FX intervention by the Brazilian Central Bank, disappointing GDP growth in India (6.1% y-o-y in Q4 2011 vs. 6.9% for the previous quarter), and the unwarranted rate cuts announced by the Indonesian and Turkish Central Banks, which are too dovish in our view.

Performance Summary

February saw an extension of the strong market performance that we witnessed at the start of the year. Emerging Market fixed income assets posted strong returns in February, led by Emerging Markets corporate high yield and local sovereign currency bonds. Performance from the special situations funds also contributed positively although much of that was a function of public equity markets performing well. In the Corporate Debt space, China, India and Mexico all performed well. The main contributors were Vedanta, Cemex and Evergrande, the first two of which announced corporate reorganisations which will assist with debt service, while Evergrande continues to benefit from being a strong high-beta credit in a sought-after industry. All of our Chinese real estate names delivered double-digit returns for the month in spite of a steady RMB as investors chased yielding assets, and even our lower-beta cement investment made a strongly positive contribution. Local currency new issuance picked up over January at approximately $1bn equivalent, although we chose to pass on it in favour of higher-yielding secondary opportunities. Most issuance was out of Russia and Asia, although a noteworthy exception was Mexico's America Movil tapping the Dim Sum market for RMB.

Special Situations

Special Situations investments on the whole were a positive for AGOL in February. EMTEK, Bangkok Land and ISM were the largest contributors to performance in February as Asian equity markets performed strongly. Jasper was the main detractor in February after its share price fell over the month. The Jasper Explorer completed drilling its first well in offshore Republic of Guinea, West Africa. However, the ship is now heading to a shipyard in Spain for some maintenance work. Some potential clients with follow-on work will be inspecting the rig while it is in the shipyard.
